Death of Mrs. H. R. Pickels.

It was a shock to the community to hear of Mrs. Pickels' death. Only a few had learned that she had been stricken, the first information to the public being that life had gone out. About 6 o'clock on Monday evening she was stricken without warning with apoplexy, soon losing consciousness and died at 9 p. m. Again we are reminded that "Ye know not the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh. Be ye therefore always ready." It is not too much for us to say that knowing her as we had for many years, we feel that she was ready; that she had her lights trimmed and burning and oil in her lamp waiting for the coming of the bridegroom. Besides her husband, she leaves two children—Mrs. Webber Hamilton and Roger Pickels, and a sister, Mrs. T. G. Foster, of Lexington.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 at the apartments on Second street, thence her burial in the Richmond Cemetery. Services will be conducted by Rev. C. K. Marshall, of the Christian church, of which she was a devout member.

A Lecherous Scoundrel.

Saturday night about eleven o'clock screams were heard from the rooms of Miss Margaret Goosman over the confectionery store on lower Main street. A rush was made to the young lady's apartments but the man had escaped. Letting himself out of a back window he went around to the street entrance and leisurely entered the front door as if nothing had happened. Upon entering Miss Goosman's room he threw a flash light into her face and by this means she was able to recognize him beyond a doubt. He was promptly arrested and lodged in jail. The negro's name is George Morton and was employed by Mr. Goosman as assistant in the bakery. He claimed at first that robbery was his object, knowing that Miss Goosman had considerable money in her possession the result of the day's business. However, the charge of attempt to rape was registered against him and Monday when brought into court to face the charge he pleaded guilty. Judge Dykes held him over awaiting the action of the grand jury in the sum of $1,000 bail which he was unable to give and was therefore sent to jail.

Can any one believing in God give any reason for not going to church? The church stands for the purity and sanctity of the home, the purity and rectitude of personal life, the highest morals, the best laws. It stands for justice, righteousness and good government. It is the great instigator and patron of all true benevolence. Skepticism never founded an asylum. The church, not infidelity, has founded the great eleemosynary institutions of the land.

Death of Mr. Flora.

We announced last week that Mr. Reuben Flora was ill, with no hope of his recovery, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Heathman, at Newby. Before the lines then written reached the eyes of our readers the spirit of Reuben Flora had taken its flight. He passed quietly away in the early afternoon of July 21, like a child going to sleep after the toll of the day. Mr. Flora was 86 years of age and had been for several years almost helpless on account of the infirmities incident to age. He was a Virginian by birth and when a young man enlisted in the Confederate army in Gen. Stonewall Jackson's division. After serving in the ranks for a few months he, with others, was transferred to the mechanical section of the army, building bridges, making and repairing wagons and such work. He remained in this capacity until the surrender of General Robt. E. Lee and the war was over. Locating at Danville, Va., he remained there until 1865, when he removed to this city, where he spent the remainder of his days, and reared his family. He was an humble man, yet a man of strong convictions of right and wrong and a most exemplary citizen. Four sons and two daughters survive him. They are Mrs. John Heathman, of this county, with whom he had for several years made his home; Mrs. C. R. Mohr, of Niles, Mich., and A. D. Flora, of Cincinnati, G. C., of Campbellsville, A. R., of Jacksonville, Florida, and Jno. I. Flora, of this city all of whom, except A. R., were present at the funeral and burial. After the funeral service by Rev. W. S. Taylor, of the Baptist church, of which Mr. Flora had long been a member, his remains were laid to rest in Richmond Cemetery.
